A miracle of formation is the bee; five eyes, protection, hairs on all sides of its tiny body to brush up the particles of flowers, its flight so straight that all the world knows of the bee line. The honey comb is a palace such as no one but God could plan, and the honey bee construct; its cells sometimes a dormitory and sometimes a storehouse and sometimes a cemetery. These winged tollers first make eight strips of wax, and by their antenne, which are to them hammer, and chisel, and square, and plumb line, fashion them for use. Two and two, these workers shape the wall. Do you know that the swarming of the bees is divinely directed? The mother bee starts for a new home and because of this the other bees of the hive get into an excitement which raises the heat of the hive some four degrees, and they must die unless they leave their heated and cling to each other and hold on until committee of two or three have ex-But who can tell the chemistry of that mixture of sweetness, part of it the very ife of the bee, and part of it the life of

The soldiery were positively forbidden to stop to eat anything until the work was done. If they disobeyed they were accursed. Coming through the woods they found a place where the bees had been busy, a great honey manufactory. Honey gathered in the hollow of the trees until it had overflowed upon the ground in great profusion of sweet-All the army obeyed orders and touched it not save Jonathan, and he not knowing the military order about abstinence dipped the end of a stick he had n his hand into the candied liquid, and as, yellow, and brown, and tempting, glowed on the end of the stick he put t to his mouth and ate the honey. Judgent fell upon him, and but for special ntervention he would have been slain. In my text Jonathan announces his awful nistake: "I did but taste a little honey with the end of the rod that was in my hand, and, lo, I must die." Alas, what multitudes of people in all ages have been damaged by forbidden honey, by which I mean temptation, delicious and attractive, but damaging and destructive. Literature fascinating but healthful comes in this category. Where one good, honest, healthful book is read now are 100 made up of rhetorical consumed with avidity. When the boy on the cars comes through with a pile of publications look over the titles and notice that nine out of ten of the books are depleting and injurious. All the way from New York to Chicago or New Orleans notice that objectionable books dominate. Taste for pure literature is poisoned by this scum of the pubng house. Every book in which sin over virtue, or in which a glamour is thrown over dissipation, or which leaves you at its last line with bon, the historian, and Charles Fox, the less respect for the marriage institution statesman, and in olden times famous statesman, and in olden times famous a depression of your own moral character. That book bindery may be attractive, and the plot dramatic and startling, and the style of writing sweet as the honey that Jonathan dipped up with his rod, but your best interests forbid it, your moral safety forbids it, your God forbids it, and one taste of it may lead to such bad results that you may have to say at the close of a misimproved lifetime: "I did but taste a little honey with the rod that was in my hand, and, lo, I must die."

To cure the habit before it comes to two tongues, the outer having a sheath of its last stages, various plans were tried in olden times. This plan was recommended in the books: When a mar wanted to reform he put shot or bullets into the cup or glass of strong drink— one additional shot each day—that displaced so much liquor. Bullet after bullet added day by day, of course the liquor became less and less until the bullets would entirely fill up the glass and there was no room for the liquid, and by that time it was said the inebriate would be cured. Whether any one ever was cured in that way I know not, but by long experiment it is found that the only way is to stop short off, and when a man does extra beams to remedy the damage. that he needs God to help him. complishes for everybody exactly what is claimed rit. One of the reasons for the great popularity of the Mustang Liniment is found in its universal applicability. Everybody needs such a medicine. The Lumberman needs it in case of accident.
The Housewife needs it for general family use. The Cannier needs it for his teams and his men. The Meckanic needs it always on his work The Miner needs it in case of emergency.

The Piencer needs it—can't get along without it.
The Farmer needs it in his house, his stable, nd his stock yard. The Steamboat man or the Boatman needs tin liberal supply affeat and ashore.

The Horse-functor needs it—it is his risud and safest reliance. The Stock-grower needs it—it will save him housands of dollars and a world of trouble. The Railroad man needs it and will need it so ong as his life is a round of accidents and dangers.

The Back woodsman needs it. There is nothing like it as an antidote for the dangers to life. is employees. Accidents will happen, and when acce come the Mustang Liniment is wanted at once.
